

I am extremely adamant that I do not want telemarketers to call me. It is also my understanding that I may soon have to put up with them calling my cell phone which "I" pay for the minutes on, not them. I know it is their job to solicit people on the phone, but it disrupts my peace and quite at home. I do not appreciate it. If they want to sell me something or solicit a donation, they should put it in the mail to me. Too many fraudulent calls are made by disreputable people giving telemarketers a bad name.

I stand for protecting the "Do Not Call List." I feel everyone in the nation should have the option of selecting who gets through on their phone lines.

I realize that if a computer randomly calls my number it does not count toward the do not call list, but I feel the people who are on the list should have their numbers deleted from the computer programs as well as any lists that may be generated.
